Perfect Passive Participles

When looking up a verb in the dictionary, what do you see?

vocāre:	voco	vocare	vocavi	vocatus
vidēre:	video	videre	vidi	visus
currere:	curro	currere	cucurri	cursus
capere:	capio	capere	cepi	captus
audīre:	audio	audire	audivi	auditus

These four words are collectively referred to as principal parts, each with their own function grammatically.

+ Perfect Passive Participles

A closer look at each word's grammatical function:

■ iacio: First person sing. pres. act. indicative

■ iacere: Present active infinitive

■ ieci: First person sing. Perf. act. indicative

■ iactus: Perfect passive participle

+ Perfect Passive Participles

- A participle is an adjective formed from a verb.
- The three inherent characteristics to this part of speech are:
  - gender : masculine, feminine and neuter
  - case : Nom., Gen., Dat., Acc., Abl.
  - number : singular or plural

+ Perfect Passive Participles

- In this chapter, we will discuss the perfect passive participle, which is formed by using the fourth principal part of the verb
- You already know which endings and how to use them. The perfect passive participle simply uses first and second declension endings.
- When we use the perfect passive participle in English, we express it by using the phrase having been (      )ed or simply (      )ed.

+ Interrogative Pronouns and Adjectives

+ Interrogative Pronouns

- You have already met most of the forms of the interrogative pronoun in the question of each lesson

Here is a chart for the complete declension:

	Singular		Plural
	M & F	N	M	F	N
Nom.	quis	quid	qui	quae	quae	Who, What?
Gen.	cuius		quorum	quarum	quorum	Whose?
Dat.	cui		quibus			To whom?
Acc.	quem	quid	quos	quas	quae	Whom, What?
Abl.	quo		quibus			By whom?

+ These look familiar....

- That's because the relative pronoun and the interrogative pronoun are formed almost exactly the same, the only differences being in the nominative singular case for all three genders and the feminine and neuter accusative singular.

+ Brain Break: Family Tree of the Olympians

+ Interrogative Adjective

- The interrogative adjective is formed exactly like the relative pronoun.
- However, when accompanying a noun, this question word grammatically becomes an adjective instead of a noun when it acts alone

Example:

Pronoun:

Quis est Minerva? Who is Minerva?

Adjective:

Quae dea est auctor amōris?

What goddess is the author of love?

- Interrogative adjectives must agree with their antecedent in gender and number

Some practice:

- Quis est Atalanta? Who is Atalanta?

Atalanta est virgo.

- Quid Hippomenēs fēcit? What did Hippomenes do?

Hippomenes cursum currit.

- Cui Venus poma dedit? To whom did Venus give an apple?

Venus Hippomenis poma dedit.

- Ā quō pomum iaciēbātur? By whom was the apple thrown?

Hippomeni pomum iacebatur.

- Cuius arbor in agrō stat? Whose tree stands in the field?

Arbor Veneris in agro stat.
